

Michael Fromme studied electrical engineering at the University of Hannover and received his diploma in 1996. Since 1997 he has worked as a research staff member at the Institute for Computer Networks and Distributed Systems. His major interests include distributed multimedia systems and group communication in high-speed networks.

Helmut Pralle, University Professor, Dr.-Ing., studied engineering sciences at the Technische Hochschule Karlsruhe and Hannover. He then began working as an assistant at the Institute for Applied Mathematics in the Division for Electronic Calculation and at the Computer Centre of the Technical University of Hannover. He received his doctorate in control theory in 1967. From 1968 to 1971 he was Head of the Computer Centre of the University of Hannover, and since 1971 Director of the Regional Computing Centre of Lower Saxony. In 1986 he was appointed Chair of the Institute for Computer Networks and Distributed Systems at the Department of Electrical Engineering and Information Technology at the University of Hannover. Since 1996 he has been a member of the Administrative Council and the Executive Committee of the DFN Association. He delivers expert reports and vocational guidance for the German Research Council (DFG), ministries and the industry. His major interests include distributed information systems and high-speed data communication.
